Successful planning for the future generation to take over the farm or planning for the farm's continued success after your death is an important part of your farm. You want to make sure that the next generation has the skills necessary to continue on the farming operation, the farming operation passes easily to them, you maintain retirement income, and your final wishes are taken care of upon your death. We encourage multiple generations to attend this seminar.

Cost: $10 per person - to cover materials and light lunch. Please make checks payable to University of Delaware.

More information can be found at: extension.udel.edu/ag/agribusiness

Please mail your check along with this form to:

University of Delaware Cooperative Extension
461 Wyoming Rd. Suite 131
Newark DE 19716

Name(s): ____________________________________________

________________________________________

Email Address: ______________________________________

Phone number: ______________________________________